CHILD CARE, MAY 1977 (PRELIMINARY)

MAIN FEATURES

- In May 1977, 40 per cent of persons responsible for children under 12 years of age were in the labour force (14,100 males, 612,400 females).
- Of the 386,000 persons who worked away from home and who were responsible for school children under 12 years of age:
 - one in two worked only during school hours or while their spouse looked after the children
 - about nine per cent reported that they made no after-school care arrangements for about 58,000 children.
- 227,900 children under 12 years of age not attending school were the responsibility of persons who worked away from home.
Of these :
 - 42 per cent were looked after at home by the responsible person's spouse or some other person,
 - 34 per cent were being cared for in other persons' homes,
 - 16 per cent attended kindergartens, pre-schools, child care centres, etc.

work and others who would have liked to have a job but were not looking for one because of child care problems, the information collected related to the care arrangements they would have preferred if they had had a job. The results of similar surveys conducted in May 1969 and May 1973 were published in bulletins entitled Child Care (Reference No. 17.2).

2. This statement contains only a summary of the more important results of the survey. More detailed estimates, which will be published in a bulletin to be issued as soon as possible, are available on request. The estimates shown are preliminary and are subject to revision.

The population survey

3. The survey is based on a multi-stage area sample of private dwellings (about 30,000 houses, flats, etc.) and non-private dwellings (hotels, motels, etc.), and covers about two-thirds of one per cent of the population of Australia. The information is obtained each quarter from the occupants of selected dwellings by carefully chosen and specially trained interviewers. The interviews are carried out during a period of four weeks, so that there are four survey weeks in each of the months to which the survey relates. These four survey weeks are chosen so as to fall within the limits of the calendar month or with minimum encroachment into the adjacent months.

Scope

4. Questions for the child care survey were not asked of persons under 15 years of age, persons aged 65 years and over, visitors in private dwellings, persons in non-private dwellings (hotels, motels, etc.) and persons in institutions, members of the permanent defence forces and certain diplomatic personnel customarily excluded from census and estimated populations. Persons in institutions are those who were patients in hospitals and sanatoria, or inmates of gaols, reformatories, etc., and for whom, for the purpose of the survey, the institution was regarded as their dwelling.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

Introduction

In May 1977 a survey, based on the quarterly population survey, was conducted throughout Australia in order to obtain information about child care arrangements of persons who were responsible for children under twelve years of age. Information obtained from persons who were employed included the type of child care arrangements they made for their children (including after-school care and school holiday care), time of departure for work and arrival home, the usual daily period of absence from home and the cost of child care arrangements. For persons who were looking for

5. Persons who worked at home and who were responsible for the care of children under twelve years of age were not asked questions about their child care arrangements. It is estimated that there were about 95,000 persons (94,000 females) in this category, of whom about 57,000 were responsible for some children who were not attending school.

6. The person responsible for the care of a child under twelve years of age was defined as the person who, being a member of the household to which the child belonged, ranked highest in the following three categories.

- (a) Child's mother, step-mother, foster mother, female guardian
- (b) Child's father, step-father, foster father, male guardian
- (c) Any other person considered by the respondent as being responsible for the child.

7. For the purposes of the survey —

- . child care centre at work comprises care centres, creches and nursery facilities at the place of work run either by the employer or by employees on a co-operative basis.
- . kindergarten, pre-school, child care centre comprises centres or institutions established for the care of children, regardless of whether they were government-operated, operated by voluntary groups or run as commercial ventures, except co-operative/neighbourhood groups (even if run with some government financial support) in which the children were minded at the home of one of the members, and kindergartens or pre-schools incorporated into primary schools.
- . looked after by spouse includes situations where persons responsible for the children worked different hours from those of their spouse.
- . at home with another person includes situations where the children were minded by persons living in the same household (other than a parent or brothers or sisters aged 12 years and over).
- . in another person's home includes co-operative groups where a number of persons shared the minding of their children at the home of one of the members.
- . school includes kindergartens and pre-schools incorporated into primary schools.

8. Definitions of labour force categories used in this statement are the same as those used in the quarterly labour force survey, which are set out in the bulletin The Labour Force (Reference No. 6.20).

Reliability of the estimates

9. Since the estimates in this statement are based on information obtained from occupants of a sample of dwellings, they may differ from the figures that would have been produced if the information had been obtained from occupants of all dwellings. One measure of the likely difference is given by the standard error, which indicates the extent to which an estimate might have varied by chance because only a sample of dwellings was included in the survey. Estimates with a standard error of more than about 20 per cent have not been shown, as the degree of sampling variability would seriously detract from their value for most reasonable uses. Although in some cases figures for these small components can be derived by subtraction they should not be regarded as reliable. More information about this topic, together with a table of estimated standard errors, will be found in the quarterly bulletin The Labour Force (Reference No. 6.20).
